that he represented a coterie of capitalists who thought Coffeyville would be a first class point for a small independent refinery. Mr. Barker was sent out to investigate the conditions. This he did quietly, making his few inquiries in an off-hand manner and talking with but very few people.

Mr. Barker intimated that his company would put up a 250-barrel refinery—if they put up any at all. The institution would consume 250 barrels of crude oil, and turn out approximately 150 barrels of kerosene. There will also be manufactories for the making of the by-products, such as axle grease, lubricating and other oils. Tankage for 20,000 barrels of oil would be erected.

MAY BUILD REFINERY.

A Man is investigating at Coffeyville
This Week.

Coffeyville, Kas., Aug. 23.—Is Coffeyville to have a refinery?
That is a question that is puzzling two or three of the business men of the city. And it is all due to the quiet investigation of a certain small man, who came into the city the first of the week and spent three days in looking around, determining the sentiment of the Coffeyville operators and ascertaining the daily output of oil.

Some Fine Wheat.

Jim Darrah sold one hundred bushels of wheat yesterday to Ben Allison for $100. The wheat was raised on Jim Darrah's farm on Sharp's Creek and was of the latest imported Russian wheat. Twenty-five acrees of its business. The veteran editor is not yet able to walk rapidly, because for shortage of breath and bad heart were planted and it yielded 600 bushels, making twenty-four bushels to the acre.—McPherson Republican.

Chanute, Kan., Aug. 23.—The Santa Fe round house is in need of repairs, there being a hole in the northwest side big enough to drive a buggy through. The aperture was made by a locomotive which a hostier, trying to get in the clear, came near driving smack through the wall.

A locomotive was being moved by a hostier along one of the tracks into the round house. A slight accident had left that he would report favorably to his syndicate.

Mr. Barker gave it as his private opinion that an independent refinery would pay down in this section of the country. He said his company had no fear but that they would be able to successfully buck the Standard, not on a death dealing, fight-to-the-finish pian, but a mere determined stand for existence. Mr. Barker stated that he would be back about the last of the month of September if his company was formed and would take definite action at that time.

Loses Train Crew. An Atchison Way.

An Atchison woman created a scene in a Fifth street saloon yesterday evening. The woman walked in the back door of the saloon and found her husband drinking beer at the bar. She knocked the glass out of his hand and knocked the bottle off the bar. "I told you if I ever caught you drinking beer in a saloon I would do this," she said. Thereupon she marched her husband out of the saloon, loaded him in his buggy, and drove home with him.—Atchison Globe.

train, will continue to live in Atchison for the present, as the train is liable to be put back again any time. B. L. Winchell, president of the Rock Island, wrote the Committee of Forty that he would be here shortly and present a matter that would accrue to the benefit of both the company and the city of Atchison. We are forced to call his attention to the fact that he hasn't been here, and that his company has taken away the only Rock Island crew that lay over in Atchison.

Parsons, Kan., Aug. 23.—The new Katy machine shop, which has been under course of development for several months, has been completed. The shop is composed of two planes, two lathes, one drill press, one shaper, two emery stone grinders, one grindstone and an electric motor.

The shop will be under the foremanship of Al Bellows and there will be between six and ten machinists employed. The machinery will be run by a dynamo, which is a 30-horse power machine. The dynamo will not only run the machinery, but will furnish light for both the shop and the round-house. The new electric engine was also put into effect Monday and this device will furnish light to the entire Katy plant.
